CLAIMS HE PAID FOR PROTECTION

Remus, "Bootleg King," Before the Senate Committee.

ALSO PAID FOR RUM PERMITS

Witness Declares He Handed Over to Jesse Smith a Total of $250,000 and That Smith Promised to Keep Him Out of the Penitentiary—Denies He Receives Favors at the Atlanta Federal Prison.

Washington, May 17.—Testifying before the senate Daugherty committee, George Remus of Cincinnati, now serving a term in the Atlanta penitentiary, said that he paid Jesse Smith $250,000 for liquor permits and for "protection" from prosecution.

Remus, known as the "millionaire bootleg king," said that he did not know with whom Smith "split" the money. "We did not discuss that point," he said.

Witness testified that in addition to the $250,000 paid to Smith, they had an agreement whereby each was to get "about $150 to $250 a case" on all liquor released. "The amount of the 'commission,'" he said, depended upon the number of cases released.

The first payment to Smith, Remus said, was $50,000 in $1,000 bills which he handed him in the Commodore hotel in New York in July or August, 1921.

After he was convicted for violation of the Volstead act in 1922, Remus said that Smith assured him that he could have the decision reversed because of his influence with the attorney general. This assurance was given him in Washington, Remus said, when he paid Smith $20,000. He denied that he was given special privileges at the prison, as other witnesses have testified.

Before he was convicted, Remus said, he had owned seven distilleries in Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky, but that they had been confiscated. He said he paid from $50,000 to $325,000 for them originally. Remus said he entered the liquor business immediately after the Volstead act went into effect in January, 1919, purchasing his first distillery.

Explaining his method of operating, Remus said that he organized a chain of drug companies and wholesale liquor companies. He would then get permits to sell legally under the provisions of the Volstead act, permitting sale for medicinal purposes. "That provision of the law is a joke, the greatest perversion of justice in any country in the world," said Remus. "I do not believe that one ounce of whiskey prescribed by physicians is used purely for medicinal purposes."

Remus said James M. Linton, special assistant to the attorney general, defended him in his prosecution. "Linton is still in the department of justice assigned to war fraud cases," Wheeler commented. Remus said he paid Smith money every time he met him. He estimated that about 700,000 or 800,000 gallons of liquor were released from bond by him.

FAVORED BY FARMERS

Fight For Gasoline Tax to Be Renewed in the Legislature.

Columbus, May 17.—It was announced here that the fight for a gasoline tax in Ohio will be renewed at the next session of the state legislature by the Ohio Farm Bureau federation. The proposed gas tax was defeated in the last session of the legislature after auto organizations of the state had fought it. Farmers' groups supported the proposal at that time.

The renewed fight will be based on the contention that the gas tax is working to advantage in Indiana. "The Indiana gas tax law is bringing in large revenue at small cost," Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Farm Bureau federation, declared. Lincoln said that with a tax of 2 cents a gallon on gasoline, the product is cheaper in Indiana than in most places in Ohio, and that there is talk of submitting a bill at the next Indiana legislative session to increase the tax to 4 cents.

Gas Workers Strike.

Dublin, May 17.—This city is affected by a strike of gas workers, and industries dependent upon gas for fuel have been forced to close. Restaurants are pressing old field kitchens into service to care for those unable to prepare meals in their own homes. Newspapers are without means to heat the metal in their typesetting and stereotyping machines.

COUPLE INDICTED

Husband Alleged to Have Strangled and Robbed Author's Wife.

New York, May 17.—Lillian Schulz, formerly of San Francisco, and her alleged husband, Harry Lesser, were indicted for first degree robbery by a grand jury on complaint of Mrs. Howard Johnson, wife of a well known playwright. Lesser, who is alleged to have used a cord to strangle Mrs. Johnson in her rooms in the Hotel Alamac before stripping her of $9,000 in gems, was indicted on complaint of a Mrs. Mildred Ford Monroe, who alleges he is the man that led robbers in her apartment April 15. The couple were denied bail. Miss Schulz said it was "silly" to attempt to connect Lesser with the Dot King and Louise Lawson murders.

Half Holidays For Postal Men.

Washington, May 17.—Postmaster General New, in an order being sent to postmasters, authorizes the granting of Saturday half holidays to postal employees throughout the country during the summer, between June 14 and Sept. 13, when it involves no curtailment of the postal service and no cost to the government.

BONUS MEASURE UP TO SENATE

House to Override the Presidential Veto Today.

FATE OF THE BILL IN DOUBT

Little Group of Undecided Senators Whose Votes Are Needed to Override the Veto Likely to Determine the Issue—Legion Commander Expects Solons to Pass Bonus Over President's Veto.

Washington, May 17.—The house of representatives is expected to override the presidential veto of the soldier bonus bill today, and the senate will take up the matter early next week.

Bonus advocates and administration leaders are concentrating pressure upon a little group of undecided senators, whose votes are needed to override the veto if it is to be overridden. The result in the senate probably will not be known very far in advance of the actual voting. Bonus advocates in the house believe they have a 60-vote margin. Senate bonus leaders are wary because of the recent reversal of form on the Bureau pension bill, which was planned to carry nicely.

Senator Copeland (Dem., N. Y.) said today: "The president has shown himself as being against all human beings. I do not approve of the bonus-bonus bill which he vetoed. I want a cash bonus. But the president showed himself opposed to all bonus plans. I will vote to pass the measure over his veto and I think all cash bonus men will."

Senator Brookhart, progressive leader, declared: "The progressives will vote to pass the bill over the veto. Success of the bill depends upon what attitude the administration senators take. If they stick by the votes the bill will pass."

Senator Curtis, Republican whip and author of the bill: "We will take it up as soon as it passes the house. Whether we can pass it over a veto is another question upon which I would not at this time hazard a guess."

The strong language of the president's disapproval awakened no noticeable response in the house among members who voted originally for the soldiers' bonus. "The voice was the voice of Coolidge, but the hand was that of Mellon," commented Representative Nelson, leader of the insurgent Republicans. Most members were reluctant to comment directly upon the tone of the message until they had opportunity to study its text.

John R. Quinn, national commander of the American Legion, issued a statement expressing confidence that congress will pass the soldiers' insurance bonus bill over President Coolidge's veto.

STONE TO APPEAL

Makes Exception to Pardon Ruling of Two Federal Judges.

Washington, May 17.—Attorney General Stone will carry to the United States supreme court the ruling by Federal Judges Carpenter and Wilkerson at Chicago refusing to recognize a pardon granted Philip Grossman by President Coolidge, it was said at the justice department. The department holds that the contempt of court charge on which Grossman was sentenced was an offense against the United States and not mere contempt of court's order requiring Grossman to close his saloon. For this reason, the department takes the position that the president had a full right to extend clemency to the prisoner if he desired to.

FOREST FIRES RAGING

Northern Alberta, Canada, Under a Heavy Pall of Smoke.

Edmonton, Alberta, May 17.—This city and most of northern Alberta are beneath a heavy pall of smoke, while forest and bush fires rage over wide areas. Hundreds of men are out on organized lines trying to check the flames. Never has this city been so smothered with smoke. The sun shines as a red disk which casts no shadow, and electric lights are kept burning all day to dispel the gloom. Several farm houses and outbuildings, together with many miles of standing timber, cut logs and farm crops have been destroyed.

Lucienne Coupet broke the world's altitude record for an airplane carrying a weight of 1,000 kilograms (2,200 pounds), attaining a height, according to his barographs, of 5,800 meters (19,024 feet) in France.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Franchise Referendum Sought.

Columbus, May 17.—Petitions calling upon the Columbus city council to submit to a referendum at the August primaries a proposal to amend the city charter governing public utility franchises will be filed with the city clerk by the Franklin Progressive league. The amendment proposed would make it necessary for council to submit to a vote of the people all public utility franchises, renewals or changes in rates, and these grants shall not become operative unless they are approved by a majority of the electors.

Ruling on Cigaret Sale.

Columbus, May 17.—As a result of an opinion handed down by Attorney General Crabbe news companies operating agencies at railroad depots will no longer be permitted to sell cigarettes on trains standing in the stations. The attorney general held also that where the company operates a stand inside the station and another outside, two separate licenses are required for the sale of cigarettes.

His Fourth Offense.

Youngstown, O., May 17.—John Clark admitted in court that he had paid two fines of $1,000 each and one of $700 for liquor violations in the last three months. Clark pleaded guilty to a fourth offense and was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary and fined $500 more.

Streetcar Fare to Be Boosted.

Cincinnati, May 17.—Owing to the deficit in operating expenses for April and May, streetcar fare in Cincinnati will be advanced to 9 1/2 cents July 1. W. Kelsley Shoop, president of the Cincinnati Traction company, said. The fare now is 9 cents.

Ransack Postoffice.

When young Doheny refused to testify last week the grand jury sought an order to compel him to do so. Doheny, Jr., filed an answer declaring he believed the government was attacking his transactions with Albert B. Fall and claimed his testimony might incriminate him.

IMMIGRATION BILL BEFORE COOLIDGE

Veto Not Expected by Administration Leaders.

MEASURE TO BE STUDIED

President to Determine His Course When He Has Received Recommendations From the Secretary of State and Labor Department. Enough Votes in Congress to Re-pass Bill in Event It Is Vetoed.

Washington, May 17.—Carrying the Japanese exclusion provision, the immigration bill is before President Coolidge for action.

Administration leaders do not expect a veto of the measure, despite the fact that all efforts by the president to delay the date of exclusion so that a treaty might be drawn with Japan have proven futile. He has since given indications to congressmen and senators that he might not veto the measure, even though it did not conform to his exact desires.

The president is expected to send it to the state and labor departments for study and recommendations before determining his course. He is understood, however, to have under consideration three possible conclusions—signature without comment, signature with a statement expressing disapproval of the exclusion cause, and return of the measure without signature but with an expression of approval for all provisions except the exclusion section.

Although objections to the conference report were voiced in both chambers, none of the opposition was based on the exclusion provision. Administration leaders supported the report, maintaining their stand that immigration was a domestic problem solely within the jurisdiction of congress and party lines did not appear in the voting, which, unless a large number should be changed, indicated ballots to spare for repassage show ballots to spare for repassage should adopted the conference report 308 to 18, and the senate took the same action, 69 to 9.

CRITICISES PUBLICITY CLAUSE OF TAX BILL

Hoover Says It Would Jeopardize Small Business.

Washington, May 17.—In a statement on the new revenue bill, Secretary of Commerce Hoover says:

"I am advised that the provision in the tax bill that tax returns shall be open to inspection is so worded that they may not even have the very indefinite protection that lies around other public documents. Even the protection of public documents is insufficient guarantee of confidential character."

"We thus have serious jeopardy that a man's business may be revealed to his competitors. Large corporations already publish the facts through reports to stockholders, and this requirement, therefore, does not materially affect them. Such publication would be likely to become the basis of credit rating in the smaller businesses and the vital factor of character and reputation will be undermined by the tax return of any bad year, thus working grave injustice on firms undergoing momentary losses or those that are unavoidable in times of depression."

"It will enable strong competitors to take advantage of temporary weak condition of smaller concerns, and on the other hand fraudulent concerns would gladly pay a few thousand dollars a year falsely disguised as profit in order to mislead the public. People who wish to disguise their wealth will be stimulated to further evasion. It will add nothing to revenue returns."

State Rests in Holycross Case.

Columbus, May 17.—The state rested its case against Sheriff Frank L. Holycross of this county, charged with bribery, after conclusion of the testimony of Edward Hensel of Grove City. Hensel followed Frank C. Motter, former deputy sheriff, who pleaded guilty to a charge of aiding and abetting the sheriff in accepting a bribe, on the stand.

DENY DONAHEY'S CHARGES

Republican Members of Utilities Commission Issue Statement.

Columbus, May 17.—A statement was issued by the Republican members of the public utilities commission denying Governor Donahey's charges that they were blocking his efforts to have a thorough investigation into the proposed rates and charges of the Bell Telephone company.

Striking back at the governor, the commissioners asserted that, though the new schedule proposing increased toll rates had been filed by the telephone company about Dec. 20, last year, Governor Donahey up to the present time "has not communicated in any way with the commission regarding the matter."

The statement also declares that the commission on its own initiative suspended the rates and proceeded to hold hearings, which have been going on for several weeks; that though city solicitors of Dayton, Cleveland, Akron, Canton, Columbus and Toledo "have daily been in attendance at said hearings and have been conducting the cases in behalf of their respective cities, no one has been in attendance or taken part in the proceedings on behalf of the governor."

The members also charge that Donahey has never consulted the commission on the advisability of employing outside experts.

FRAUD ALLEGED

Seven Business Men of Dayton Indicted by Federal Grand Jury.

Dayton, O., May 17.—Seven business men were indicted by the federal grand jury here in connection with the crash of the American Finance and Investment company. They are charged with use of the mails to defraud in connection with the sale of stock. The company is now in the hands of a receiver. Those indicted are: Edward Wuschet, president-treasurer of the Union Storage company and the Lincoln Storage company; Milton C. Stern, president of City Register company; Charles W. Magle, president Merchants' National bank; Clarence Keffer, Charles W. Hoffritz, J. M. Dunwoode of Cincinnati; B. Johnson and Daniel W. Quinn, also known as Dan W. Quinn, Jr.

Twelve Thousand Miners Out.

Scranton, Pa., May 17.—Twelve thousand miners, employees of the Lehigh Valley Coal company in the Pittston-Wilkesbarre district, are on strike. Every colliery of the company is closed, according to reports to the headquarters of the miners' union. A reduction in the rate paid for yardage and the alleged refusal of the company officials to confer with representatives of the district president were given as the reason for the walkout.

Woman Claims Estate.

Omaha, Ont., May 17.—Search for a legal heir to the $14,000,000 estate of Gilbert Gagnon, who died 13 years ago in San Bernardino, Cal., was ended when word was received that Mrs. Sophie Gagnon Deslauriers of Massines, Quebec, who claimed she was a niece of the millionaire, had put forward a claim.

LURS OF LURISTAN NATIVES OF PERSIA

Ancient Province One of the Most Backward Regions.

Washington.—"News dispatches telling that Teheran troops have subdued the Lurs of Luristan open a vista of history which is almost as long and fully as alluring as the revelations of Tutankhamen's tomb," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Persia itself is the only land of Old Testament times which retains its identity, name and nationality to this day, and the Lurs are believed to be the aborigines of this ancient country.

Persia Still Primitive.

"The laws of the Medes and Persians have become a synonym of immutability; Persia itself, almost roadless, primitive and isolated, is essentially unchanged. And the remote Luristan province, on its western border, corrugated by mountain ranges, is one of the most backward and unaltered regions of all Persia.

"Luristan nominally accepted Mohammedanism, but the Lurs pay scant attention to the Koran or to the prophet. Their religion embraces a philosophical belief in reincarnation and the practice of ancient heathen rites.

"The Elam of the Book of Esther included Luristan and the ruins of Susa, within the borders of the present province, yielded to excavators of recent years specimens of pottery bearing geometrical designs, reminders that some of our mathematics, especially our algebra, came from Persia.

Where Wine Came From.

"Some of our finest fruits and flowers, much of our jewelry, and the wine which no longer is ours, are Persian gifts to our civilization. A Persian legend attributes the discovery of wine to a queen's toothache.

"A shah had placed grapes in a jar to preserve them and they fermented, so the story runs. Thereupon his majesty marked the jars 'poison.' After sleepless nights with a throbbing molar, the queen determined to end her misery and swallowed a liberal portion of the 'poison.'

"She fell into a deep sleep, and when she awakened the pain had gone! Therefore, the native will tell you, the Persian word for wine to this day means 'sweet poison.'

Alexander's Last Campaign.

"A superstitious general might hesitate to invade Luristan. There Alexander the Great made his last campaign, offering up the enemy as human sacrifices to the spirit of his friend, Hephaestion. There, too, Antiochus IV attempted to loot the temples, was driven into the 'shameful retreat' mentioned in Maccabees, and shortly after that experience he lost his reason.

"Aside from its gifts of peaches, oranges, spinach and polo to western peoples, Persia has for America two modern points of contact. An American body of experts is trying to put the country on a sounder economic basis, and oil bids fair to overshadow all other products of the ancient kingdom.

Herodotus Strikes Oil.

"Neither of these contacts is new, however, for as early as the reign of Shah Abbas, in the Sixteenth century, Persia engaged British military men to train her army. And Herodotus made the first report on her oil when he wrote:

"Near Ardericca is a well which produces three different substances, for asphalt, salt and oil are drawn up from it in the following manner: It is raised by a balance beam, to which, instead of a bucket, half a wine skin is attached. Having dipped down with this, a man raises it and pours the contents into a reservoir. It is then poured from this into another and assumes the different forms; the asphalt and the salt immediately become solid, but the oil they collect and the Persians call it rhandance. It is black and emits a strong odor."

Roman Amphitheater in Heart of Philippopolis

Philippopolis, Bulgaria.—Archeologists are stirred by the discovery of what is evidently a Roman amphitheater in the city square, Djumala.

The workmen were digging foundations recently for a new structure, when four meters below the surface of the square they came upon a flight of marble stairs of massive construction and surface worn smooth by the tread of many feet.

Officials summoned from the museum gave as their preliminary opinion that these marble steps, a little less than a meter wide, were the aisle of an amphitheater. The archeologists of the ethnological museum at Sofia will make further inquiries and possibly continue the excavation.

New Method Used to Heal Severe Burns

London.—Disfigurement from injuries by burns is prevented by a new way of treating burns just tried at the London hospital.

The patient is left without dressings or bandages of any description, the places affected being simply washed with boracic acid, and stearate of zinc is applied.

Little medical attention is required afterward, the burns being allowed to heal on their own.

China Wood Oil From Nuts

Tung or China wood oil is a important raw material in the manufacture of varnishes, wall paints and enamels, and is largely used by the lacquer and printing ink industries.

It is nearly colorless, quick drying, elastic, and very tough. The oil is pressed from a nut that grows on tung trees of two species which are hardy, deciduous, and about 20 feet high.

In China it is used chiefly to preserve the thousands of boats that ply the waterways of that country.

For transport, the oil is put in baskets lined with 16 thicknesses of varnished paper, each holding about 130 pounds of oil. These baskets are brought to a small city or market place in the interior, where they are purchased by representatives of exporters.—Detroit News.

Dry-Clean White Dogs

One of the serious objections many persons have to owning a white-haired dog is the trouble of keeping him clean, but the truth is that a white dog is just as easy to keep clean as a dog of any other color, but not by constant washing. The whole secret of keeping a white dog clean is to groom him thoroughly every day. Continuous washings ruin the texture of the dog's hair. To make a white dog look really smart, give him a dry shampoo. Rub him all over with a lump of ordinary whiting or chalk. When he is caked with the powder and looks as if he had been dipped in a bag of flour, brush him vigorously so that all the loose powder will be shaken out and you will find that he will look cleaner than he would if you had given him a wet bath.

Expulsion of John Farson of Farson, Son & Company from the New York stock exchange was announced from the rostrum of the exchange.

Plains of Abraham

The heights near Quebec overlooking the St. Lawrence river took their name from Abraham Martin, a Canadian pioneer of Scotch descent who was a pilot on the St. Lawrence in the time of Samuel Champlain, founder of the city. By a deed authorized by Champlain himself Abraham Martin, who was affectionately known as "Maitre Abraham," obtained a homestead on the heights of Quebec. His herds of sheep and cattle grazed on the tableland along the St. Lawrence which became known among the inhabitants of the town as the Plains of Abraham. In 1908 part of the Heights of Abraham were converted into a Canadian national park.

HERRICK REFRIGERATORS

HERRICK DRY AIR SYSTEM REFRIGERATOR

The Big Difference In Refrigerators

The main object of any refrigerator, of course, is the preservation of foods. The refrigerator that will keep foods in perfect condition longest is naturally the refrigerator you want—provided it doesn't increase your ice bills.

The Herrick answers those requirements with facts—not claims. And it does even more. It actually decreases your ice bills while giving you more effective food preservation.

And why? Simply because the Herrick is far more than an ice box—far more than a cold storage place. It is built on the scientifically demonstrated principle that more than merely cold air is necessary to keep foods in good condition for any great length of time.

Perhaps the biggest essentials to scientifically correct refrigeration are—

- No. 1. Circulation of cold dry air.
- No. 2. Effective insulation.
- No. 3. Air-tight construction.

That the Herrick has these necessary essentials is a demonstrated fact. Many proofs of the truth are visible even to the least informed purchaser. Others are hidden within the walls of the refrigerator, but nevertheless there, performing their functions so important to good health and economy.

U. S. WARNS ALL GAS CONSUMERS

Federal Bureau Seeks To Reduce Accidental Deaths.

For four years the bureau of standards at Washington has been studying different kinds of gas equipment used in American homes, with a view to promoting health and safety. Now and again news of an accident from a stove or heater reaches the public. But defective or improperly designed equipment may also cause headaches and discomfort in varying degrees, and the persons affected may not be aware of the cause.

This is what happens. When gas burners are lighted, clean-cut steady cones of flame should rise. Unless the flame is normally yellow the cones should be blue. The flame ordinarily does burn in this way if sufficient oxygen can reach the gas to cause perfect combustion. The gas is then completely burned, and nothing is released into the atmosphere of the room except carbon dioxide and water vapor. These are the same harmless constituents that human lungs breathe out. There is no odor from the fire.

Deadly Carbon Monoxide Gas.
When anything is done to make the flame burn in a lazy, blurred mass, by reducing the air supply, combustion is not complete and carbon monoxide gas is formed. Unfortunately, this dangerous gas is odorless, though sometimes conditions are such that other chemical ingredients are present with the carbon monoxide and an unpleasant odor is given off as a warning.

Unfortunately, too, the blood has what physiologists call an affinity for carbon monoxide about 250 times as great as its affinity for oxygen. The human body demands a given amount of oxygen, but the unwholesome gas takes precedence. When the lungs carry carbon monoxide through the tissues of the body into the blood, less oxygen is supplied. If a room is badly ventilated and carbon monoxide is steadily released for two or three hours, even at the rate of, say, four parts in 10,000, an individual in the room would have headache and feel dull. Greater concentrations would cause nausea and weakness.

Since the bureau of standards has been conducting tests it has learned of a number of cases in which improper cooking and heating equipment caused mysterious ailments. In one typical instance, a housewife complained of always being tired. She had frequent headaches for three years. Doctors told her that she was anemic. She was advised to have her eyes examined. It was even thought that she was contracting tuberculosis. Finally the kitchen stove was suggested as a possible source of the trouble. It was fixed so that it did not release carbon monoxide and the disturbing symptoms disappeared.

Knowledge Needed.
I. V. Brumbaugh, gas engineer, who has been conducting government tests with gas equipment, says that the public should know enough about combustion to avoid danger and discomfort. Carbon monoxide gas can result from imperfect combustion of any fuel. It may be liberated from stoves burning oil, kerosene, wood or coal. In a garage or automobile repair shop that is kept tightly closed, carbon monoxide in unsafe quantities may be formed by running automobile engines.

So far, the bureau of standards has confined itself to the important study of gas equipment. More gas is being used in this country every year. Whereas in 1915 204,000,000,000 cubic feet of manufactured gas were burned, in 1920 the amount increased to 320,000,000,000 cubic feet. Increase in use of natural gas has been even more marked.

The government makes no criticism of the gas industry. Reputable manufacturers of appliances honestly aim to turn out safe equipment, and concerns often conduct expensive research to test out their appliances. Improvements are regularly being made. Gas companies, too, are interested in promoting public safety. There is no reason why the public should regard gas equipment as any more hazardous than the electric light system, the family furnace, or an automobile engine. The difference is that whereas most people know enough to handle electrical apparatus with some care they are not apparently awake to the fact that gas has its peculiarities which should be treated with consideration.

Gas Saving Devices Dangerous.
In Baltimore an unusually large number of accidents with stoves and heaters last year caused the city health department to consult with the bureau of standards. As a result, representatives of the bureau and of the United States public health service journeyed to Baltimore and spent some time studying conditions there and investigating equipment supposed to have caused accidents.

A case of fatal asphyxiation was traced to a flexible tube which a woman had tied up with a rag and string. And this was far from being the only house where the residents casually tried a hand at amateur gas repairs. In other cases worn-out or too cheap equipment caused imperfect combustion and consequently leakage of carbon monoxide. Use of gas-saving devices designed to concentrate the flame more directly in the cooking utensils was prevalent. Practically all of these devices cut off too much air from the flame, with the inevitable result—carbon monoxide.

Another frequent source of trouble was the use of cover appliances to hold the heat in the stove or heater and prevent it from escaping. This sort of thing generally cut off the important air supply from the gas. Solid tops added to grate-top stoves, for example, are safe only if it is possible for the flames to burn normally under the solid top.

Dangerous Experience.
The hazardous experiments that people carelessly try with gas equipment with the idea of improving it are unending. In one instance a man was found unconscious beside a small room heater. He had placed a pan of water on top of the heater with the mistaken idea that this would keep the air from becoming too dry. Hot air heat does tend to dry the atmosphere, but gas in combustion releases water vapor. The pan of water was not merely useless. It covered the air vent of the heater and smothered the flame and the gases which were formed had to escape through the stove door and cracks. This man recovered and learned how to use his heater, which was really constructed on a satisfactory plan.

The important point is that the gas flame, like the human body, requires a given amount of oxygen supplied in the right way at the right time. In a small room with windows and doors tightly closed a heater that is constructed on good principles may use up the available oxygen very quickly. If it is kept burning after the oxygen supply is greatly reduced a person in the room may develop a headache or in time be overcome. The danger of this is greatly reduced, if not entirely eliminated, where appliances are connected to effective flues.

Not Always to Blame.
The Baltimore investigation revealed some instances in which gas equipment was unjustly held responsible for casualties. One man died of asphyxiation attributed to a missing screw in a gas heater. A test was made, however, to show the amount of gas released into the room. By this test the heater was acquitted and it was later found that the man had purposely inhaled gas.

The bureau of standards points out that while cases in which carbon monoxide escapes from gas equipment are comparatively few, they are far more numerous than they should be. Its advice to the public is to avoid equipment that is defective, worn out or improperly designed and cheaply constructed, and also to avoid careless experimenting with untested or unsuitable appliances.

Artificial Moonlight to End Shadows of London

A scheme looking toward the flooding of the whole inner area of London with artificial moonlight after night-fall will be brought before the Institute of Public Lighting Engineers, which has just been organized in London. The plan calls for flood lighting of the city from eight powerful constellations of electric lights, which would surmount steel towers 500 feet high distributed over a wide area.

Supporters of the scheme say the present method of lighting great cities by thousands of small electric lamps involves an enormous waste of light, due to the rays hitting the sides of houses and shops before their full power is exhausted.

Adoption of the new scheme, it is said, would result in better lighting and make London practically shadowless, as well as cutting the cost of illuminating the city's 2,223 miles of streets, which as at present lighted by the system of individual lamps costs £1,000 nightly.

Coeds in China Bob Hair Like American Girls

Chinese coeds are bobbing their hair as a result of seeing pictures of American girls, writes Walter Belt, 1920 graduate in pharmacy, to his sister, Mary Belt, sophomore in agriculture at the Oregon Agricultural college at Corvallis, Ore. Mr. Belt is teaching in the Canton Christian college, Canton, China.

The Chinese are interested in what happens in America. They are eager to know how the American differs from the Chinaman, and how schools in this country differ from those of China. Many students work their way through college there just as students do in the United States, Mr. Belt says.

Court Rules Pedestrian Has Rights in the Road

Pedestrians have every right to walk in the road and can collect damages if injured, the Third District Court of Appeals at Sacramento, Cal., ruled.

The court held that the old English common law for the protection of pedestrians was in force today in California, and charges of negligence could not be made against the pedestrian for carelessness.

The ruling was made in the case of a man who was hit by a truck while he was walking on the road.

Deaf Fill Church After Microphone Is Put In

When several members of Grace Lutheran church at Norfolk, Neb., complained of deafness and quit attending services Rev. F. C. Brandhorst, pastor, installed a microphone on the pulpit, strung wires to the pews of the complainants and provided headphones. The result has been a filled church, the system attracting many who previously had not attended because of faulty hearing.

Trouser "Galluses"
"Galluses" is an old word fast disappearing from use. It is now seldom heard except among old people or in backward districts. The word is a corruption of "gallowes," which is still used in parts of Scotland for "suspenders." "Gallowes" is only another form of "gallows," a framework for hanging criminals. It seems that our forefathers put criminals and trousers in the same category, the gallows being the common fate of both. Although "galluses" is now considered dialectic, it was formerly used by many writers of repute.

TOOTH COSTS

Tax Assessors Look in Mouth for Wealth of Citizens.

A New York millionaire is being sued because he refused to pay a Florida dentist $500 for a new tooth. He thinks the index number for teeth is not that high. For $500 a man should be entitled to at least an eye, ear or nose.

A painless dentist now-a-days is one that give gas with his bill. Before a man can secure a position as bookkeeper in a modern toothery he has to learn how to administer seven kinds of anaesthetics.

It is easy to see now that a big mistake was made in not having a dentist on the Dawes commission. Think of the reparations he could have dug out of Germany at $500 a tooth!

Tax assessors used to look up your property; now they look down your mouth.

A stingy man with $500 teeth will chew his soup, bite his tea and masticate his coffee. There is hardly any limit to the value of a rattling good set of teeth; 25 per cent off where they don't rattle.

People used to weep and gnash their teeth when they were in trouble. Now they weep and gnash their unpaid dentist bills.

Yes, the high cost of teeth with all its untold terrors is upon us.—The Thrift Magazine.

Attempts to Get Gay With Policewoman and is Arrested.

Emily Greer, Columbus policewoman, was walking along East Main street near Fourth, about 9 o'clock Thursday when she was approached by a young man who said, "Hello, where are you going?"

"No place," replied Miss Greer. "Let's go to a picture show," proposed the man.

"No," said Miss Greer. "Well, where do you want to go?" insisted the man.

"It's a pretty howdydo when a woman can't walk along this street without being insulted. I'm a policewoman," said Miss Greer.

The young man ran into the arms of Policemen Thornton and Connell. He attempted to jerk away from Thornton and his heel struck the plate glass window of the Rackett store, 173 East Main street, shattering it.

He gave the name of Ed Ardin, of 36 South May avenue. Before Judge Seidel Friday he plead not guilty to a charge of insulting a female on the street.—Columbus Citizen.

Miss Greer is a former resident of this city, a daughter of Conductor Samuel Greer, who runs trains on the "Old Sheepskin." Miss Greer was formerly a probation officer at the Girls' Industrial Home, Delaware.

Helena, Mont., May 17.—William Cosgrove was convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of Henry Abendroth at Hardin, Mont. The two men were employed on a ranch as cowpunchers. Abendroth then placed the hat on his head and told Cosgrove to try to hit in that position. Cosgrove fired again and Abendroth fell, shot through the head. Cosgrove was sentenced to from one to two years in the penitentiary, but the sentence was suspended and he was released with an admonition.

STRUCK OIL

Who Put South Perry on the Map—Movie V o' l'd be Interesting.

On the outskirts of the village, a second oil well has been drilled and is spouting a golden stream of oil at the rate of 50 barrel or more per day of the finest grade of oil. The wildest claims may prove tame in comparison to the future. Some one has missed a golden opportunity here. A moving picture of South Perry and its people as it may be in a year from now would make its owner a fortune.

A few of our citizens—Camp Floyd and Lew McClelland now walk around with their chests sticking out and telling upon every occasion how they used to live in South Perry and act as if they helped to make the oil that has put that village on the map. "We came from South Perry," they boastfully declare and some of the good citizens of South Perry say, that the only thing they ever did for South Perry was to come from there.

Camp is talking of moving back again. We can't understand what business he could have in a place where every man, woman and child is as busy as an old maid's tongue at a Ladies' Aid meeting. Camp would be of about as much use in that busy, bustling bee-hive of industry as a fly on the top-end of the North pole.

Anyway, South Perry, here's hoping that your wildest dreams come true.—Laurelville Correspondent Adelphi Border-News.

MAKE GARDENS YIELD

SUCCESSION OF CROPS.

Successive plantings of garden crops at intervals of ten days or two weeks are recommended by Roy Magruder, assistant horticulturist of the Ohio Experiment station, to provide a continuous supply of fresh vegetables for the home table.

Instead of filling the garden at one planting, part of the peas, cabbage, cauliflower, lettuce, onions, radishes, beets and other plants are easily injured by frost may be planted as early as the ground can be worked, leaving space for later plantings. It is not safe to plant sweet corn, beans, tomatoes, peppers and egg plant in the garden until danger of frost is past. But these like the early planted vegetables may be planted at intervals until well into June. Where garden space is limited the early maturing crops may be followed by late crops, or inter plantings may be made if the soil is well fertilized or manured.

ROAD CLOSED.

The Columbus-Chillicothe road will be closed from a point two miles south of Columbus to Chillicothe, until June 15, according to an announcement made Friday in the detour bulletin issued by the Ohio Good Roads Federation in connection with the state highway department. ## AMUSEMENTS

Villains in one of the biggest pictures of last season, they are now the hero and heroine of one of the biggest films of the new year. Barbara La Marr and Roman Novarro, who both made their start to fame in Rex Ingram's "The Prisoner of Zenda" in which they were the conspirators, have got together again in the leading roles of "Thy Name is Woman," the Fred Niblo production presented by Louis B. Mayer thru Metro, which is coming to the Met theater on Monday.

FRED NIBLO'S "THY NAME IS WOMAN"

The impetus the two players received in popularity from the Ingram production has brought them both to "Thy Name is Woman" as stars. According to advance reports, the picture, which is a story of love and revenge in the Spanish Pyrenees, gives them their greatest acting opportunity yet.

GLEE CLUB

Capital City University Boys Gave Splendid Concert at Memorial Hall.

The Capital University Glee Club concert at the Memorial hall Friday night will long be remembered by those who heard it, as one of the most pleasing and entertaining of its kind, that has been in this city for a long time.

The various numbers by the club and solo work, both instrumental and vocal of individual members, were well rendered. It was regretted that Dr. Mees, who made the graduation address at Ashville Friday night, was unable to attend, but his place was ably filled by one of the club members.

A return of this organization for next year is being looked forward to with pleasant anticipation.

PEN POINTS

Nature gives us the keynote. Let's all tune in now.
The farm furnishes us a lot of things besides bread and drink for the body. No man can live in the country with his eyes and his soul open and not be a better man.
With all our spring seeding, let's be sure to broadcast plenty of the good seed of love and loyalty to right, neighborly kindness and self sacrifice.
Remember this: You are building up your business when you sow good seed and tend your crops right up to the handle.
No man on the face of the earth has a better right to the best there is on the farm than the farmer himself; and yet, lots of farmers eat specked apples and small potatoes the year around. It is not right. Save plenty of the good things for home use.
One thing that is the matter with the world today is that there are so many men who are satisfied to black boots and clean hog pens when they might be doing the big jobs that need doing everywhere.
Put as much of yourself into hoeing for the fifty acre cornfield and you in the garden as you do into caring will have "sass" for the whole year round.
How long is your memory? Long enough to reach back to boyhood? Then be careful how you say things that hurt the heart of the boys and girls. Better bite your tongue till it bleeds than to speak a word that leaves a "pricker."—Edgar L. Vincent in Farm Life.

BETTY TRIES A STAGE CAREER

By KATHLEEN THOMAS

(©, 1924, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

THE little tearoom at the Sign of the Pewter Bowl was prospering. That Betty was really the cause for the Pewter Bowl's new-found prosperity none knew better than Charlie Bridges, its proprietor. His favorite post was behind the wire cage of the cashier's desk, where he would beam genially and admire the high color that flushed Betty's cheeks as she flew about her duties.

In time Charlie, good business man that he was, sought to make the arrangement permanent. There were other arrangements besides business for Charlie's wanting to marry Betty. She planned, in time, to have a career, and Charlie was given the small consolation of knowing that she was serving as a waitress only as a preliminary to great things.

Just what definite form these high ambitions of Betty's took she had never confided to Charlie. But anybody with half an eye could see that she was extremely solicitous about the needs of the stage folk that came to the Pewter Bowl, and might have concluded that Betty was stage-struck. Which was true.

For her the romance of the day began shortly after noon, when the profession begins to bestir itself abroad. Chorus ladies, frankly made up for a matinee, would drift in then for a combination breakfast-lunch, and Betty would serve it much as a Greek hand-maiden might have offered sacrifice to the gods. There was theater gossip tossed from table to table, and Betty would listen breathlessly. And sometimes, in lieu of a tip, a customer might leave a complimentary ticket to a performance at his theater. And once—the thought of it still thrilled her unspeakably—once Joy Barry sneaked her behind scenes to a corner where she could watch things unnoticed.

Joy was a "super" at the theater across from the Pewter Bowl. She was blond, pretty and, Betty privately thought, deserving of more recognition than an undiscerning public had yet accorded her. She was possessed of the mercurial temperament common to the successful and unsuccessful of her profession, which, as it happened, was of vital importance to Betty, whose whole career had been altered because one day Miss Barry entered the tearoom completely out of sorts.

Stage life, it appeared, was everything that was detestable, she was through for good; she was going to cut today's performance; she would get a good job with easy hours, waiting on tables or selling toilet articles.

Betty listened to this high treason with a heart that beat in painful excitement. She knew Joy Barry's part—she had to skip lightly across the stage with a group of village girls in the third act, and to decorate the background, smiling naturally, in the fourth act. Easy enough! Would she—would Joy, dear Joy, let her take her place just this once. Joy smiled cynically at Betty's excitement, but she agreed willingly enough. She would write a note to one of the girls in the act, so that there wouldn't be any trouble about it. Nobody else would notice her.

And so it happened that Betty Best found herself, for one night at least, a part of the life she had so long dreamed about. In the pigtails and abbreviated skirts of a village girl she waited in the wings for the cue. Her throat was distressingly dry and her tongue clove to the roof of her mouth. She was terrified, for no reason at all. Her knees trembled and she smiled a sickly response to the girl who tried to cheer her up.

All too quickly came the cue for the entrance. The other village girls skipped by her and left her behind in her hesitation. She copied their motions as best she could and forced herself upon the stage. The audience, that vast sea of faces out there, rose and reeled dizzily before her. She swung her arms stiffly beside her and hurried as fast as she could to the haven of the wings.

The other girls were sympathetic. Everybody felt that way—why, some people never got over it! In that moment Betty's career was sealed, and Charlie might take heart.

The fourth act came all too soon. In tights and ballet skirt that made her feel more miserably self-conscious than ever, Betty waited in the wings as though for her doom. Her cue—it was time to go on again! She set her stiff lips into a determined smile and walked upon the stage. The same dizziness, the same freezing of all her powers! She managed to get into her place in the background—and then fainted dead away. Joy Barry had played the part for months without being able to attract notice. Not so Betty Best!

We don't have to say much about the furor it caused, because Betty wasn't there to hear it, either. She slipped into the Pewter Bowl a little shamefacedly, her natural color putting her grease paint to shame.

Charlie greeted her reproachfully. "I say, why didn't you say you wanted to go on the stage?" he demanded. "I could have pulled some strings to get you a real part."

Betty shook her head at him, her expression one of benevolent wisdom; but a trace of mischief showed through her smile.

"I don't believe in careers for women," she announced. "Woman's place is in the home."

She Distrusted Real Motive of Boy's Visit

In the family that had moved next door to the Smiths was a boy about seven years old. The Smiths had a little girl, Virginia, just the same age. Everyone expected the two children to become playmates at once, but almost a week passed before they noticed each other. Then the boy came over to play with Virginia. Virginia, however, immediately went into the house.

"Why, what's the matter, Virginia?" her mother asked. "I thought you had been wanting to play with the new boy."

"Well, I did at first," Virginia admitted, "but I don't care so much about it now, at least, not today."

"Why don't you want to play with him?" mother asked.

"Oh, mamma!" Virginia exclaimed. "He's had a whole week to come over here and hasn't done it. Now I've got a nickel to spend for candy and I don't care whether he comes or not!"—Exchange.

Intemperance a Danger.
As love and self respect are the pillars of the house life, so intemperance is the certain destroyer of the home, attacking as it does the very fabric upon which it rests. Very many people imagine intemperance refers to abstinence from, or moderation in drinking spirituous liquors, beer or narcotic drugs. But it is possible to be intemperate in words and actions.—Exchange.

Use of Fertilizers Aids Apple Growing in Ohio

The use of high nitrogenous fertilizers, according to the Ohio Experiment station, on the hilly lands of southern Ohio has practically revolutionized the apple growing industry of that section.

While fruit in order to grow and produce vigorously, must have access to liberal supplies of ammonia phosphoric acid and potash, it is the first-mentioned plant food that most often is lacking and needs to be furnished in liberal quantities. The importance of attending to this need properly is indicated by the fact that upon ammonia depends the condition of the foliage, the vigor of twig growth, and the formation of fruit buds.

In the sections of Ohio mentioned, the application of ammonia fertilizers has doubled and trebled the yield of fruit. Ordinarily the fertilizer is scattered on the ground under the outer ends of the branches at the rate of three or four ounces for each year of the tree's age.

"Bad Luck" in Swine Raising Is Beaten

Pays to Raise Pigs in Clean Surroundings.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Thirteen farmers of Henry county, Illinois, testify that they have beaten "bad luck" with hogs by raising their pigs according to a plan that prevents infection by roundworms and filth-borne diseases. A printed leaflet, based on letters from farmers indorsing the McLean county system of swine sanitation recently circulated by the Henry County Farm bureau, gives convincing evidence that it pays to raise pigs in clean surroundings.

This system, as developed by the United States Department of Agriculture, calls for the cleaning of brood sows and placing them in disinfected pens at farrowing time. This is to prevent the newly-born pigs from coming in contact with roundworm infection.

Then, by keeping the growing pigs on clean pasture protected from exposure to hog-lot diseases they are permitted to make the greatest economical development, with little danger of loss from filth-borne infection.

In his letter one farmer stated that out of 215 little pigs he had lost only 5, which had been killed by the cattle, and that there were virtually no runts in the herd.

Another said that five years ago he had quit raising hogs because of his heavy losses due to diseases. Now he is raising hogs successfully under the McLean county system.

All agree that they would not attempt to raise hogs in any other manner.

Take Every Precaution to Guard Against Worms

If the farrowing pen or house is thoroughly cleaned with scalding hot lye water, then disinfected, and the sow, especially her udder, is washed with strong soap suds before being placed in the farrowing house, the little pigs will start life without picking up worm eggs that cause so much loss each year. If those precautions have not been followed it will be necessary to worm the pigs later. This is worthwhile, but much more expensive and less satisfactory than preventing worms. The most reliable of all worm remedies consists of five grains of calomel and eight grains of santaloin per 100 pounds of live weight. Keep pigs off feed for 12 to 24 hours and mix these drugs carefully and thoroughly in a thick slop. Use every possible precaution to insure each pig getting an equal share.

FARM FACTS

Paint not only preserves; it also brightens.

Grape vines around the home furnish beauty, shelter and fruit.

Use fertilizer as a supplement to good cultural methods and not as a substitute for them.

Name your farm; then make it become a good name by selling only carefully graded products.

The invading army of insects will soon launch their attack. Is your spray rig ready for battle?

Whitewash looks good on the outside of poultry houses and pig pens, but on the inside it does good.

If you did nothing all winter, you couldn't do a regular hard day's work now; so don't expect the horse to, either.

It takes less time and costs less money to replace the oil in the tractor than it does to put in new bearings and piston rings.

The Colorado potato beetle makes its appearance at the time the plants are coming up. The plants should be sprayed as soon as the beetles are observed.

If you are farming just for the exercise and fun of it you will need to plant good seed so as to have something to do at harvest time. If you are farming to make money, you will need to plant good seed anyway.

Famous Egyptian Statue Was Originally Monolith

The statue of Memnon is situated near Thebes in Egypt. It is sixty feet in height, and commonly known as the "Vocal Memnon." It stands on the left bank of the Nile, and with its companion was erected in honor of Amenoph III of the Eighteenth dynasty, in front of his now vanished temple. It was originally a monolith, but, having been overthrown either by Cambyses or by the earthquake of 27 B. C., the upper part was restored by means of sandstone blocks. According to ancient tradition, this statue when first touched by the rays of the rising sun, emitted a musical tone, like the snapping of a harp-string, which the imaginative Greeks concluded was the voice of Memnon greeting his mother Eas (the dawn). Strabo, who visited this statue about 18 B. C., was the first to mention it.

"These sounds . . . were said to be produced either by a priest hidden in the Colossus or by the expansion of fissured portions under the influence of the sun's rays. Though many celebrated persons of antiquity—such as Strabo, Aelius, Callus and Hadrian—testified as to hearing this peculiar music, its particular character and cause have never been satisfactorily explained."—Vincent's "Actual Africa."

It is estimated that over 155,000 different books, pamphlets and magazines are published annually in the different countries of the world.

BOXERS

Capacity Crowd Greeted Contestants at Armory Friday Night.

The boxing exhibition given at the Armory Friday evening, drew a capacity audience and enthusiasm was manifested when one of the contestants put something across in a clean blow, knocking out his adversary. The athletes in the first and second bouts were well matched. In the first between Battling Toles, of this city, and K. O. Barksdale of Columbus, the former won the decision.

The second bout between Joe Monoco, of Columbus and Young Thomas, of this city, was also a four round affair and was called a draw. He let young Thomas down easy as he is an amateur. He is game and will when he learns to use his left, become a formidable boxer.

The semi-final bout of eight rounds was a pretty exhibition of boxing. The contest was staged between Frankie Wells and Soldier Mellow of Chillicothe. The latter won easily on points.

The main event between Waldo Patterson, of Columbus, and Al Leever, of Portsmouth, a ten round affair, was disappointing to the audience, as it did not last long enough. Patterson knocked out his adversary inside of thirty seconds. He landed on the point of Leever's left jaw and sent him to the floor. Leever took the count to eight and attempted to regain his feet, but when his second, saw that Leever was knocked out, he threw up the sponge. Patterson took advantage of an opening and sent his adversary home. The latter was game enough to challenge his opponent to another fight in this city at a later date. Patterson is a good boxer and this is his second victory inside of two weeks. He knocked out Wary Wade at the Goodale arena in Columbus, Monday, May 5.

Ray Mahoney, of Columbus, acted as referee.

THANK OFFERING

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society, organized in 1869, now has a membership of more than 600,000. The budget for the years 1923-24 calls for $2,500,000. This money is used in kindergarten schools, hospitals, and evangelistic work in twelve different countries.

In its 55 years of service this organization has expended $20,000,000, sent out 1,200 missionaries; there are now 750 missionaries in the field, 38 of these being daughters of missionaries.

FARMERS WANT SOLONS TO PASS GAS TAX LAW.

Fight for a gasoline tax in Ohio will be renewed at the next legislature by the Ohio Farm Bureau federation, it became known Friday. The renewed fight will be based on the contention that the gas tax is working to advantage in Indiana.

"The Indiana gas tax law is bringing in large revenue at small cost," according to Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the farmers' organization. He disputed the claim of opponents of the gas tax that it would cost about as much to administer the measure as the income amounted to by declaring figures for the neighboring state show it costs only $3177 to collect $2,395,000.

POWER OF COMPOUND INTEREST

We often hear that Peter Minuet in 1624 paid the Indians only $24 for Manhattan Island. We are apt to think of this as a ridiculously small sum for what is today the most valuable piece of land of its size in the world; but we do not stop to think that if this original $24 had been invested by Peter Minuet at the rate of 7 per cent per annum and compounded every six months to date, it would have earned a sum equivalent to the assessed value of the entire city of New York, so it is said, including its streets, sewers, railways, subways, theaters, hotels, skyscrapers, and palatial homes.—The Thrift Magazines.

A Truth To Ponder.
"The Christian is 'dynamic' only because his foundations are 'static.' His character rises like a growing superstructure on fundamentals that cannot be moved. If a mathematician were to insist on going back continually to prove the axioms he would never so much as cross the pons asinorum. Some things must be regarded as settled 'once for all.'—Dr. David James Burrell.
